

WHAT'S ON YOUR MOBILE?

Ready or not: mobile data is on the rise—and law firms are looking to stay above the deluge.

Mobile is here to stay.

69% AGREE

specific skills and tools are needed to handle mobile data.

61% AGREE

it's critical and will only increase.

BYOD

79% of law firms allow employees to use their own devices for work matters in several capacities

45% allow all employees to use their own devices on work matters.

34% percent allow limited use of employee-owned devices on work matters.

ONLY 27%

of firms are making mobile security policies.

Preparedness versus prevalence of mobile data

40%

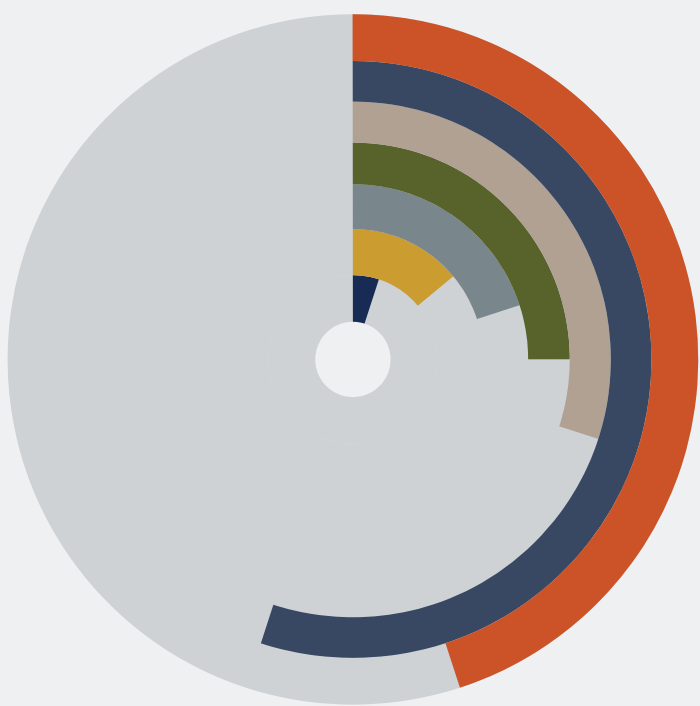

of law firms have a process for collecting mobile data ...

while just as many do not.

57% of law firms were involved in about 3.5 matters involving collection and review from cell phones an increase from 41% last year.

How today's mobile collection systems work.

45% say no one tool does everything well.

55% have a system in place.

30% have a satisfactory system.

25% have a workable yet less than ideal solution.

20% had an "other" challenge.

14% had primitive/unreliable tools.

5% had no mobile data viewer at all.

WHAT'S NEXT IN MOBILE?

20% of law firms are evaluating wearable devices and their potential impact on discovery.

For more information, contact us or visit us at www.accessdata.com

Source: ALM Marketing Services Reader Survey, July 2015. Prepared for AccessData®.

©2017 AccessData Group, Inc. All Rights Reserved. AccessData is a registered trademarks owned by AccessData in the United States and other jurisdictions and may not be used without prior written permission. All other marks and brands may be claimed as the property of their respective owners. 042017